DEDICATION

To the walls of Dixie . . . . . sandstone or brick, adobe or lumber, cut in sacrifice, cemented by endurance and faith. On these walls lie our story.

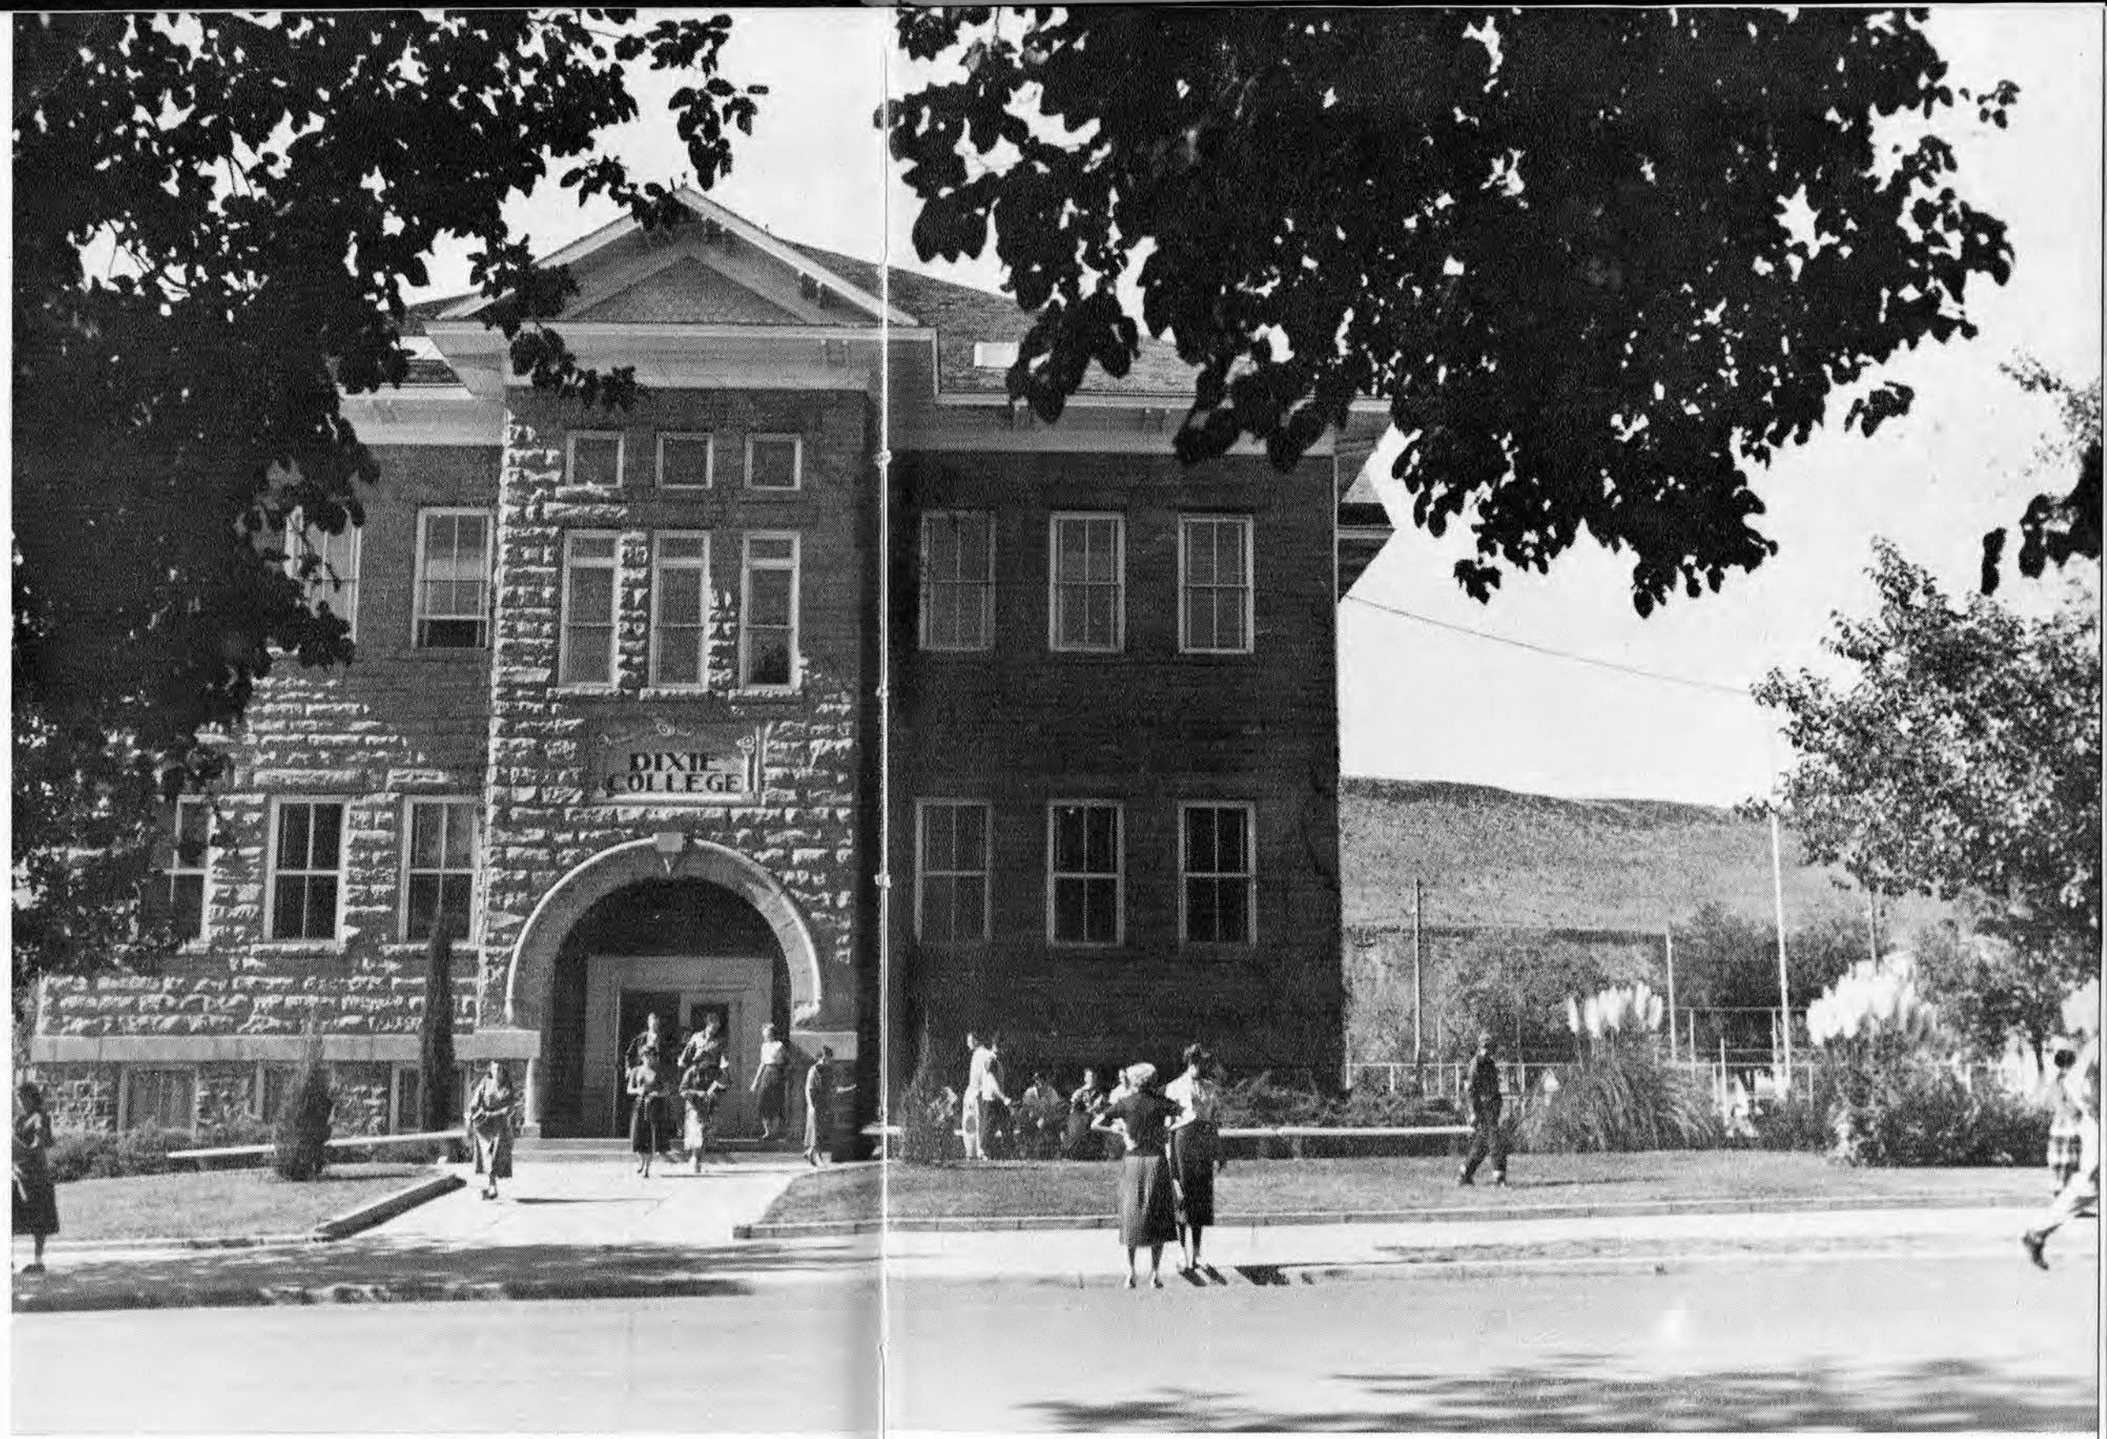

They represent our youth—our golden age. They are the sand and sun of a hundred years and a thousand students. They are the joy and success, the tears and failure. They are the hope for the future.

They hold within their foundations the formula for peace. It is for us to find.

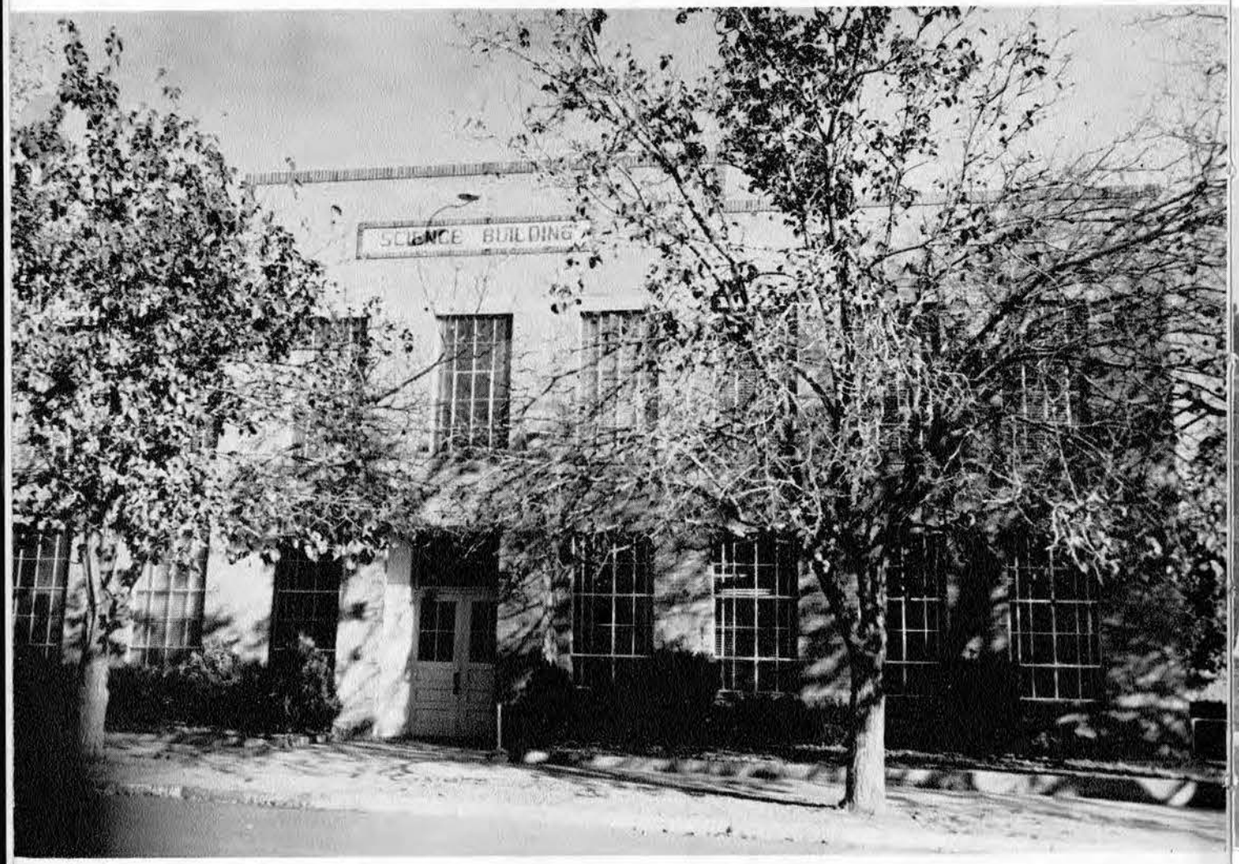

May she ever be as strong as her walls:
Their strength measured by the spirit behind them.
Their years numbered by the students they sheltered.
Their capacity extended to all who seek brotherhood.
May Dixie's walls stand in protection to good, as a barrier to evil always.

So it is that we will always remember the things which have happened here, as will the walls remember and keep as their deepest secret all of our fondest memories.

ADMINISTRATION

PRESIDENT ELLVERT H. HIMES

WITHIN THESE WALLS . . .

Herein may be found the greatest portion of the wealth that we will ever know. The friendships, the loyalties, the richness of the world outside has been significantly brought to our attention. On every side we find a wall lined with memories—pictures of friends, places near and remote, objects of admiration and inspiration, shadows of dispair and reverberation of singing laughter. Would that walls had ears to hear with, eyes to see with, and lips to speak of the secrets that ho!d the story of the life of each individual who has attended Dixie College, and thus has been enriched because of the experiences within these walls. It is my sincere hope that all of you may continue in a life filled with wall offerings—beautiful pictures, vistas of a far-distant sky, glittering sunshine through windows of a wall lined by a view of a glorious future. May you open the door through which you may pass into the greater life which has been so significantly contributed to within these walls.

WILLA NITA BROOKS

D-Day Queen

To have been your D-Day Queen for 1953 and '54 is the most wonderful thing that happened to me. To have represented you as the Spirit of Dixie will always be:

A memory to cherish;

An ideal to inspire;

A challenge to keep me always worthy of dear Dixie.

—Willa Nita
