County News reports progress on the new 'Dixie Academy' building.

Dixie College celebrates its 75th anniversary this year. The Washington County News recorded the early days of the "Academy" in these actual clippings from our newspaper files from those days.

December 16, 1909:

Stake Academy Work

Work on the Stake Academy is fairly under way. The excavation for the foundation is completed with the exception of deepening that part of it where the engine room will be, and a force of men under Pres. Thos. P. Cottam are at work tampering the ground preparatory to putting in the concrete foundation. One car of cement is now being hauled from Modena and another car will shortly be unloaded at Acoma. One hundred loads of sand have been hauled from the river, and many loads of gravel have also been hauled. It is the intention to rush the work as much as possible in order to have the building ready for next school year. The academy will be a splendid institution for Dixie, and will keep much money at home.

Springdale Sends Lumber For Academy

Springdale, Jan. 31—I. H. Langston and Wm. Reusch, Sr., have just returned home after taking a load of lumber for the Stake Academy at St. George.

The mutual presidency presented a drama on the stage Friday. After the drama and several other parts there was a dance. Everybody seemed to enjoy themselves.

The threshers are here threshing lucern seed. We are having very warm weather for this time of the year.

Jesse Gifford and Walter have returned from Washington, where they have been with grist.

December 8, 1910:

The Stake Academy

Work on the Stake Academy continues with right good will, and the beautiful structure is showing up to better advantage every day. It will be a grand monument to those who have helped in its erection when it is completed, an object of use and beauty that will attract many here for tuition from outside points and give educational advantages to the students of the stake who would otherwise have to go to outside schools at greatly increased expense.

Ground was broken for the foundation of the building October 31, 1909, and work has been continued on it from that date until the present time, although at times very little progress has been made owing to the fact that the building is being erected mostly by voluntary contributions and during the summer the people have been busy in their various avocations.

This paper has from time to time stated how work was progressing, and has given descriptions of the class of work used in its construction, but we may repeat some of this for the benefit of those who may not have read the articles. The foundation rests upon cement concrete piers four feet wide and two feet deep. The basement walls are constructed of black volcanic rock laid in cement mortar. The upper stories are being constructed of gray sandstone, pitch ashler style, the sandstone being obtained from a quarry near Washington, six miles distant. The walls of the building are nearly completed to the top of the first story above the basement, and the building ought to be ready to receive the beautiful steel roof within two months if the present rate of work is continued. Nine-tenths of the rock required is now on the ground, considerable of it ready to be laid.

The amount expended to date is $20,000, but funds are needed to carry on the work and the committee makes an urgent request for all to aid in getting the building completed so that it may be ready for use next September. The committee is especially in need of cash as several thousand dollars will be required to purchase finishing lumber, shingles, doors, windows, paints heating plant, etc., etc.

The value and advantage of having such a school here is generally conceded, and the appeal for help and funds made by the committee is not likely to pass unheeded, for it is believed that all who can will help to their utmost to rush the building to completion so that returns will not be delayed.

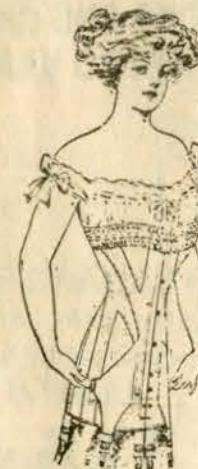

The Co. News contained this notice in nearly every issue during construction:

Title X family planning money granted

WASHINGTON- By passing the Labor/Health and Human Services appropriations bill, the Senate this week gave its initial approval to permit the Utah Department of Health to again receive federal Title X family planning money under the Public Health Services Act, Senator Orrin Hatch (R-UT) announced.

Included in the $114 billion bill which funds the Departments of Labor, Education and Health and Human Services is $600,000 for a demonstration project in Utah. The project's purpose is to study the effect of parental consent laws on the delivery of family planning services to minors.

In 1984, the Utah Department of Health lost its federal funding for Title X services because of a state law requiring parental consent for minors. The U.S. District Court for Utah ruled that requiring parental consent for the use of federally-funded family planning services violated congressional intent.

"Much of the general debate about Title X in Utah has centered on the wisdom of Utah's parental consent requirement for minors. What has been lost in the discussion is the fact that when the court ruled against the state, it created a considerable hardship for low-income women who live in rural areas where women's health services are not easily available. Keep in mind that Title X provides money not only for contraceptive information, but also venereal disease screening, infertility assistance, adoption, education and other counseling services. The court's action effectively restricted the accessibility to important health services for these women. Surely, that was not the intent of Congress," Hatch said.

"And, now we have the opportunity to obtain statistical data on the impact of parental consent laws. Right now Utah and the rest of the country are struggling to come to grips with the problem of teenage pregnancy. This demonstration project will provide hard information as opposed to rhetoric and speculation," he added.

In December, the Labor and Human Resources Committee, chaired by Hatch, sent the Title X reauthorization bill, which contains the Utah provision, to the full Senate for approval. Once that bill is approved by Congress and signed into law, Utah can receive the demonstration project funding.

Special commemoration meeting scheduled

BUNKERVILLE, NEV.- The first annual fast and testimony sacrament commemorating the division of the original ward of the Bunkerville LDS Church will be held during the regular first ward meeting hour at 11:30 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 28, according to first ward Bishop Elwin Whipple.

Present plans are for second ward Bishop Kelly Jensen to present the main thoughts for the combined meeting.

The Bunkerville ward was founded in 1893 under the leadership of Bishop Edward Bunker, who is the great-great-great-great-great grandfather of little Mark Lee Talbot, first ward's newest baby, son of Lynae Talbot and grandson of the Dick Talbots, all of Bunkerville.

Well-known lecturer to be in St. George

ST. GEORGE - Claire Field, well-known quilt lecturer/demonstrator, will be in St. George Sept. 25. She will present a seminar on various quilting items, including:

- How to put a quilt on a frame (by yourself) in 15 minutes.
- How to sew 200 squares in 1 1/2 hours.
- The care and keeping of quilts.
- Labeling quilts.
- Making elegant tied quilts.
- Show quilts.

Field will also present a slide show featuring quilts made from things around the house.

One of Field's quilts was featured in a recent issue of American Quilter. The quilt was made of 225 squares of Levis and 12 T-shirts.

Sponsored by the Dixie chapter of the Utah Quilt Guild, the presentation is open to all interested. The program will begin at 7 p.m. in the Washington County Administration Building. The charge for the presentation is $2.

Janice Rogers, local chapter and southwest area representative of the guild, said, "I've heard of her work from people across the state. Field is known for her creativity."

Your County News carrier will be knocking on your door in the next day or two, asking for voluntary payments of no more than one dollar and seventy-five cents.

This $1.75 is the suggested monthly payment for a carrier's current DELIVERY SERVICE. It is NOT a subscription fee or payment to the County News itself. Except for direct mail subscriptions, the Washington County News DOES NOT COLLECT subscription money from county residents. Any amount you may pay to your carrier is kept by the carrier.

County News carriers may ask for or accept less than $1.75, but they are not allowed to ask for more than this amount.

If you appreciate the delivery service you're receiving from your County News carrier, we encourage you to make a voluntary payment.

Of course there is absolutely no obligation to make any kind of payment. You should not feel pressured to pay because you, the carrier and the County News all understand that it is a voluntary program. Our system allows for the fact that carriers will not collect from every home.

And don't forget, the County News does not claim any portion of a carrier's collections. So when you pay a carrier for good service, you really are rewarding the carrier. You're also encouraging your carrier to keep up the good work.

Our goal is twofold: We want to make our newspaper available to every county resident, and we want our delivery system to be absolutely the best. If you have any questions, suggestions or comments, please call 673-0300 or write to P.O. Box 550, St. George, Utah 84770.

Dance at Academy

A dance was given in the Stake Academy Monday night by the Stake board of Education as a mark of the Board's appreciation of the help given by the people in the construction of the beautiful academy building. The dance was free and a general invitation was issued.

The beautiful room in which the dance was held was splendidly lighted by electric arc lights; the Academy Orchestra furnished delightful music, and the well-laid hardwood floor made dancing a real pleasure. There was a goodly number present and they appeared to thoroughly enjoy the treat. One hundred and fourteen couples were counted dancing on the floor at one time, which gives some idea of the capacity of the room for that purpose.

A dance will be given in the Academy every night this week up to and including Friday night.

We go to press with this issue Wednesday night in order that the people may have the paper earlier during home coming.

ACADEMY OPEN

Exercises Are Attended by Number Of Parents and Patrons of The School—Timely Remarks

The Stake Academy began the work proper Friday morning when the opening exercises were held in the assembly room of the academy. The principal, Mr. H. M. Woodward, presided and he was supported by the Stake presidency and other members of the school board and his assistants. There was a good attendance of parents and others interested in the school and the students were all present.

The proceedings opened with the singing of "The Lord is My Shepherd" by the students.

An appropriate prayer was offered by Mr. G. F. Whitehead.

Mr. H. M. Woodward said the purpose of the exercises was that the parents might become acquainted with the faculty of the school. He compared the smallness of the beginning of the school with the xie College celebrates its 75th anniversary this year. The Washington County News recorded the early days of the "academy" in these actual clippings from our newspaper files from those days.

Washington County News

Christian Church 1900 years ago, when it was noted only as a small sect but had increased until it had become great. So also he hoped their school would become great. Spoke of his love for the work and the students, believing that without love, kindness and sympathy the school could not be a success, and also thought that the teacher who had not a sympathetic heart had no place in the school.

Mr. Geo. T. Cottam said it was the happiest hour of his life to see the students before him. It was something he had been looking forward to for many years. He looked back over his own school life and his coming to St. George. He saw many before him who had the same experience as he had. Their first school was a tent and he never remembered attending school more than three months of the year, and even then he went bare-footed. He thanked the Lord and the brothers and sisters who had assisted for the building. It had been stated that there was not a better hall south of Salt Lake City.

Mr. J. T. Woodbury said when he saw the students it made him wish that he had the opportunity to go back to where he began. Spoke of his earlier days when he attended the Deseret school and the courses he took in English grammar, literature and political economy. He was pleased they had the opportunity before them and hoped they would appreciate the efforts made by the Stake presidency and their parents, who had done so much for them.

"A Song Without Words" (Mendelssohn) was rendered on the piano by Miss Highbee.

Mr. George F. Whitehead said he had been bubbling over with joy since the school had been opened and that the students had come forward so well. He believed they could travel the world over and not find a better class of students than those who were to attend the school.

Referred to expense gone to for the erection of the Academy and showed that it would cost $90 per capita besides the entrance fee paid for the education of the students. There was no doubt that this school was going to go, for their students came from the best stock which could be found anywhere.

Mr. D. H. Morris said that when Governor Spry was here he stated that the State spent $13,000 a day for district schools, as well as $500,000 a year for the University of Utah, the Agricultural College, and the Branch Normal School. The academy was a fair sample of what was going on for education all over the state as well as the United States.

Mr. J. T. Woodbury, Jr., responding on behalf of the students, thanked the parents for the efforts they had put forward on their behalf, and also for the faculty provided to teach them.

Mr. Staheli, one of the faculty, rendered a violin solo.

Pres. E. H. Snow said a man's soul must be dead indeed who could not be inspired by the gathering this morning. He remembered that in their council meetings it had been said they must have a good water system, streets lighted by electricity, and a high school, and now they had got all three. One of the speakers said he had had no education, but when he looked round and saw what had been done in that beautiful building he thought he had education indeed for he had done something useful. From the day that the idea had been projected of erecting this school there had never been a dissenting word nor a thought that it could not be built. They said they could do it and with the help of God and the help of the parents they had been successful. By the help of the students they could make it a grand school, and he felt that out of them they would yet take the future teachers. He believed Mr. Woodward when he said he saw in them the material from which to make clever men and women. He paid a tribute to Bro. Orton, who had been an inspiration to them, having promised only $200 but had given $1,000 and all his interest was in the school. They were going to have his portrait in the school.

A song, "O, It Is Wonderful," was given by the students.

The proceedings were brought to a close with prayer by Mr. Staheli.
